Regulatory Analysis Summary and Supporting Documentation:

Pursuant to R.I. Gen. Laws § 6-11.2, the Office is authorized to promulgate any rules and regulations necessary to carry out the duties and responsibilities of the referenced chapter. The proposed regulations offer similar provisions to the existing rules and regulations that govern the trade of precious metals. The proposed regulations are intended to promote consumer protection for Rhode Island residents by establishing requirements governing the regulated-metals trade.

By proposing regulations overseeing the regulated-metals trade, the Office is ensuring compliance, oversight, and consistency in the business. Clear requirements for licensees and sellers are intended to provide greater consistency in regulated-metals transactions and to reduce the potential for noncompliance with applicable law. The proposed regulations establish a consistent framework for the regulated-metals trade, including incensing, fees, business requirements, seller requirements, and compliance monitoring. A defined regulatory structure should facilitate more consistent administration and oversight of regulated-metals dealers and provide the Office with clearer mechanisms for evaluating compliance. The proposed regulations will support implementation and enforcement of statutory requirements governing regulated metals.

The costs to licensed are minimal and ensure that those who are trading in regulated metals are complying with existing and applicable state law. Small businesses will be regulated under the proposed regulations and the anticipated burden on affected businesses will be administrative rather than any significant capital expenditure. These regulations represent the most effective and least burdensome method to promote consumer protection in the regulated metals trade.
